

CAREER-BUILDING NIGHT 2018

March 12, 2018

It started with a brewery tour and ended with casual conversation over pulled pork sliders. In the two hours in between, acquaintances were made, career stories were shared, resumé and job interview tips were offered, and the best ways to sell oneself through social media were discussed. In short, it was the third annual installment of the Stumptown Orange's Career-building Night.

McKean Banzer-Lausberg ('99), a founding owner of Migration Brewing, was our host and an alumni panelist. He was joined on the panel by Erika Kirkland ('05), Anh Nguyen-Johnson ('95) and Miro Milanov ('10). Rounding out the panel was Brett Kadz, Senior VP for Recruiting at VanderHouwen, a Portland staffing firm. The discussions touched on careers in education, entrepreneurship, footwear design, social media marketing ... and brewing, of course.

The 17 attendees included both familiar and new faces. While many were Generation Orange (alumni from the last 10 years), graduation classes from the 1970s and each decade since were represented. Thanks to everyone who presented and who came to listen!
