

Stumptown Orange
THE SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI CLUB
OF GREATER PORTLAND, OREGON

A BETTER OUTCOME AT THE PUB THAN ON THE FIELD NOVEMBER 17, 2018

It wasn't much of a game, but it was one heck of a blood drive. The 12th-ranked Orange were dismantled by third-ranked Notre Dame, 36 - 3. Well, let's just say that the blowout gave the alumni more of an opportunity to visit at the Old Market Pub. But what Syracuse lacked on the Yankee Stadium turf, its alumni in Portland made up for in community service.

And not just the Stumptown Orange, but alumni of schools from coast to coast to coast who gathered to roll up their sleeves to bolster blood supplies for the Portland area and beyond. The schools represented on the part of blood donors and volunteers ranged from LSU and Auburn near the Gulf Coast to Occidental and San Diego in California, to Wisconsin, Oberlin, and Iowa State in the Midwest, to Linfield, Portland, Portland State, Oregon and Oregon State locally ... and two University of North Carolina campuses: Chapel Hill and Charlotte.

In all, 34 units of blood were collected, well above the goal for the day and ten more than were collected at last fall's drive. Thanks to everyone who attended the game watch, including some new faces and old friends. And a special huzzah to Old Market Pub and everyone who helped make Do You BLEED Orange 7 a success!
